ESPION AGE—ON-THE PRINTER.

Inhabitants in the country parts of Prance have remarked the presence of large numbers of vandors of images and of internat merchants generally. These persons visit the villages in detail, and show marked predilection for local gostip. Such a phenomenon was observed on the eve of the war of 1810-71, and its responsance at this moment is significant of the even of the war of 1810-71, and its responsance at this moment is significant of the resumed activities of Germany. The pediars are no doubt spice in the pay of the German Intelligence Department. Their bosiness is to find out the local resources of the country, and to take note of the state of feeling of the inhabitants. During the great struggle of thirty years ago the spy, primed with local knowledge played a large part in the military operation. A betame of the village would often be saluted by name by a soldier wasning the Prassian uniform, who had perhaps coorpied some position in the country before the outbreak of the war, and utilised his opportunities of seeing and hearing to the advantage of the conquerors. In view of this fact, it is, perhaps, not surprising that the peasants should be convinced that Germany contemplates some new mischiel. On the other hand, the French are also preparing for the day of an herois struggle whose proximity rests on the knees of the gods. It resisted its death-blow at the Drayfus trial—shet singular and disquisting symptom of offinial rottenness. NEW LINES AND EXTENSIONS.

We mentioned a short time back that the Council of Ministers had authorised the Cairo Transway Company to extend its present system by the construction of new lines and the extension of others. In addition to the present urban lines, consisting of those to Choubrah, Abbassieh, Nasrieh, Saida Zenah, Rod-B-Farag, Canal Ismalith, Khalig, Sollace, Ghinab, Daher, Jid Cairo and the Citacle, the following new lines are projected by the company to complete and extend the existing network.

The sage increase (17,525) in the number of prisoners admitted on conviction is explained by the working of the revised code. It is, however, very satisfactory to find that the number of prisoners confined in default has, dropped to 18,055, and that the Irrigation and Omdabs' Coarts have imprisoned many less than during either of the previous years. etwork.

The marker magistrate does not affect the question much, as in the majority of the cases dealt with by these magistrates, there is no areat before trial. The fault like, in my opinion, in the procedure followed by the police in reading forward arrested persons to the Tayawa Parky third ranght in flagrant delivers, and sentenced within twenty four boars by a police magistrate is preciselly unknown in Rayrit. After police action, if rests with the Parquet to commit the Casir validairs, some on stresses, etc., and appoint a day for trial. All this takes time. If we forther analyse the figures in this return we find that 4,464 of these prisoners were only disposed of after imprisonment for one month and more, and of this number (4,464) prisoners were still endisposed of, at the close of the year, notwithstanding that they had been in confinement for upwards of 8 months. These figures (which I have insluded in my report for the first time this year) are of special interest, as I mo of opinion that they throw light on one of the faults in the administration of faction in Repyl, a fault which, I fear, still calls for a remedy notwithstanding the changes in the law and the establishment of markes magistrates. ### THE STRONG MAN OF NORWAY.

No recent event has more profoundly atom-ished the world than the sudden separation of Sweden and Norway. The summemore would have been less had the repture led to military bestilities. For the indifference of Sweden outside nations seem unable to account. But the truth is that for a quarter of a contary Norway has been seeding with democratic discontant, and has been sitter administering pre-pricks or accusing the Swedish Administra-tion of doings with the seem of the control of the con-

Yet the leaders of the Norwegian people are in no sener rabid Radicals or innatical Republicans, for they'are looking for a king. Should they be enable to secure one, they can be under the control of the contro

Should they be enable to secure_offs, they can copy well rule without man at this moment is. The most famous man at this moment is. Christian Michalese. He is chief of the Cabinet, and Chairman of the Storthing, Tacity as knowledged as the ruler of the nation, he pos-sesses the confidence of the whole people. When, he and his colleagues rasigned in a body, they precipitated the recent reiss. But they were fully prepared to form a provisional Go-vernment.

were fully prepared to form a provisional covernment.

Christian Micheleen was born in 1857. Thus he is one of the hand of young attacemen at the age Witte, Juares, Tiass, Roosevelt, Batfor are all in the prime of their full vigiour, and the nations no longer seem to depend on the matured wisdom of veterans like Bimmerk, Gliadstone, Bescousfield, and Gurtschakoff. It fas the epoch of the younger politicians, and Micheleen is one of the most vigorous of them all. In his forty eighth year, he has come suddenly to the front, but this was folly because he has proved his supreme capacity. Styled by rouse of his similars in the Norwegam press "the Cromwell of the Sandinavian crists", he is a fascinating personality. Tall and of somewhat sleader build, he commands or somewhat sleaders build, he commands or somewhat sleaders build, he commands respect by his very appearance. His features. of somewhat slender build, he commands respect by his very appearance. His features are regular, and the expression of his coun-tenance is exceedingly intellectual. With large cenance is exceedingly intellectual. With large bright eyes, a high forehead, bushy hair cut short, and a thick monstache and short stubby beard, he wears the aspect of a very keen man of business as well as of a highly refined gentleman.

beard, he wears the appear of bisiness as well as of a highly refined gentleman.

The qualifications of the Norwegian Prime Minister for his distinguished position are the result of a peculiarly advantageous training, as well of his great natural ability and his appearant temperament. Possessing the faculities of ready initiative, rapid decision, indomitable will, and irrepressible energy, he was just the man either to create a critical juncture or to make the control of the contro

Norway's busiest ann most remained by the mercial city.

M. Michelsen for several years occupied the position in Bergan of Chairman of the Beard of Aldermon. His entrance on Parliamentary experience took place in 1991, when he was returned to the Storthing as the representative for Bergan. But he retired her acting only three years, going back to business and municipal life in 1891, Not business and municipal life in 1891. Not business and municipal life in 1891. Norwegian pouttor. Ine recent issues have proyed his actioness. It is a singular fact that Christian Michelsen, the youngest of the members of the Norwegian Cabinet, should be the Prine Minister. Several of his polleagues and many years older then he is, and all are his sentior in age. All are "long men," and all regardly retermined in the offere adopted. The Norwegian Cabinet is composed of mon of fine abilities, but not one is, in brilliago, and in hommes subjly, the capal of the Ireding spirit. But for the accompromising thereaghers of M. Michelsen, probably the trundle would simply have gone on simularing for years longer phraigs with nach more himself, when the propagation of the Michelsen, probably the trundle shall results. One fact not to be light and rolled the M. Michelsen is the flower of the fact of the light and the decided by the people of briedless.

The Storthinia, or National Parlament, of Norway, which is so much in evidence-jear now, consists of two Horses, very similar to two Horses, very similar to the two two Horses of the American Congress it is composed of 114 members, who are schooled by the people, and it divides itself into two Houses cash year by describing one-fourth of its members vator the Saagthings or Sanate, the remainder ounstituting: the Lagthing, or Horses of Representatives. The Storthings have frequently refused to vote sont funds for the army and navy-as were natisfactory to Sweden. It has endowanced to substitute milities for a regular military establishment; it has significant for a separate computer assertion, and, show all, for a separate diplomatic service, and, show all, for a separate diplomatic service, and, show all, for a separate diplomatic service. But they seem that the present the two countries, of which too little har been said by critice outside Sean innavia, has been the important fact thus Pres Trade is practically complete in Norway, while for over twenty years Sweden has established and santained a high farelf. Without taking into account these various elements of disturbance to the crisis cannot be adequately understood. The Storthing, or National Parliament, of

The "Berlings Tagenlart." counsels extreme caution, and above all, quiet. If the British Fleet means unischefit will be easy to get up an acadent or incident which may embitter still further the relations between Begland and Germany, and lead to greater tension. It cites numerous possible incidents: such as quarries on, whore, interference with regular novigation, &t., which might cause trouble fit the Germany authorities do not exert themselves to arrange for their avoidance. But, on the whole, the atmosphere is free from electricity.

The "Temps," in an article to day, pronounces the excitement displayed by the German Press over the announcement of the forthcoming craise of a British agoadron in the Baltie to be ill-judged and inaxonable The journal alludes to the conventions which guarantee the abnolate freedom of the Baltie, and argues that the special arrangements made in 1789, 1780, and 1794 with a view to the nestralization of that say in time of war could not be applied to the present case. ### OUR PARIS LETTER.

PROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

Paris, August 1

Paris, August I.

b last meeting of the Tzar and the
an Emperor was at Wiesbaden, in 1903,
subject of discussion was Manchuria,
over else the Tara and Kaisjer may, have labout this week, it is certain that in measure the subject-was still Manchuria, what a different key! At Wiesbaden hattering arrival of the special secort
in from a German regiment of which the was honerary colonel, suddenly sumlifton Berlin, was, as it were, a taken of Lixur from a German regiment of which the art was honorary colonelly, suddenly sum-ment from Berlin, was, as it were, a token of gubhicity of the meding. It was all very letrent from the almost secret meeting of-t two yachts on the high seas. As of Paris, has scarcely yet become articulate since it as attentiable by the news that the silty or prace was to meet the—shall we say I enemy [Factor. Parisians, who have their hearts in a Rissian alliance, were when they are mended this ties or longer outpestionably good business," never thought that their ally good business," never thought that their ally selected that the offere of proposing a decing with the Kaiser. From the first they without that it was the Kaiser. From the first they selected that it was the Kaiser art Joneshall the Kaiser when he sent his telegram to result hat it was the Saiser religeram to see inment here. But let us not go too fast the his mersionable and puzeled people of resentment here. Set let us not not look as with the impressionable and puzzled people of Paris. I have little doubt that, whether the Tsar informed Paris gifreetly, or through Berlin, of his intentions, M. Rouvier did know even if it was at the last moment, of the meeting of the two Emperors before it took meeting of the two Emperors before it took

The situation created by the announcement that forthooming visit of the British fleel to the Batte is one whose disvelopments are being very closely followed by Prenchene. Every-doody followed by Frenchene. The state of the Asier of the Asier of the Tast, but recent events have given a poculiar significance to the British Admiratly's plane, and the fact that British asilors have not been seen for many pears in the Baltic only emphasies the importance of their contemplated visit. Frenchmen are by no means displeased to see the menaces of the Kaiser met by a demonstration which will prove to the world that, whatever other nations may think of the "mailed fat," England at least is ready to accept the challenge whenever it is made. True, there is a disposition in some quarters to consider that Germanophobic has recoulty bulked too largely in British politics, but a calm and dispositions the British Lion desent above his teeth until be is provided.

Germany, or, rather, the Raiser's—cayacity for making trouble is not confined to the north of Europe, for in Morocco the situation is by no means satisfactory, thanks to the policy pursued by Count von Bellow's representatives. When—after a certifical period during which it was uncertain whether Prance and Germany would have recourse to 'arms—they agreed to settle their differences by diplomatic methods, it was hoped that all cause of friction
had been removed. But according to the Prench had been removed. But, according to the French papers, although Germany and France have papers, although Germany and France nave agreed to submit their schemes and plans to the conference which is to meet for the purpose the contention which is described in the purpose of coming to an international agreement concerning Morocco, and in spite of the fact that M. Ronvier and Prince von Badolin ar sometimes indexed and Prince von Esdolin are at present disensing the programme of that conference, the German special covey to the control of Morecco is doing all he can to obtain special concessions: from the Sultan. This is what Englishmen would describe as "not playing the agade." Freenchmen ikes the view that from the moment that France and Germany came to an understanding on the subject of the conference, the German envoy at the Sultan's court should have been recalled. But instead of that he is busy trying to secure as much as he can before the conference meets, and if he is successful in obtaining what he wants, the conference will have very little "raison d'être."

That Count von Tattonbach has overstayed is welcome at Per is clear from the lates ews from the Moroccau capital, which is to he effect that the Sultan is highly displasses at very other German mission news from the storecast capital, whole is to the effect that the Sultan is highly displased at the prolonged stay of the German mission. Their continued sojoorn has made agricus inreads an the Sultan's purse, for, in accord, acce with Mprocoan costom, it is incumbed on His Majesty to defray all the expenses of his guests board and lodging; and that of their escorts. Each Boropaan receives daily an entire sheep, trently-five eggs, several fowing, com, &a. And Abdel-Asiz must also provide for the wanter of the lorent This runs the Sultan into a daily expense of something like £160, and as some of the German embassies row at Eye have been there several months, it is hardly carprising that the Sultan—whose exchanger's not in his most flourishing condition—abould wish that Allah would take his visitors elsewhere.

There is perhaps no Boropean-capital more constitute to weather conditions than Paris When it rais, anything like peristence, the gaisty of the Bonlevach seems to dispay par; he would weaks its most deployable man. Rais has the bit weather aspect also, when congrise flag and spirits flop down to favo and the loop point. There is not only a vary present sense of best in the gay city, but a troubled conviction that presently there will be an owner to mix with with The street.

barself; it is true also that such state matters, as the popular theatre are being agitated; but beyond that, there is nothing except columns of journalistic speculation on the Imperial Conference. As a pictnesson figure the Barperor William appeals strongly to the Prenchmattre, which is much influenced by time distantial in the second of the pictness of the second of the secon dramatio; it is certain that he is a good to the barren newspaper.

If you go of an alternoon to the railway termini you will find a great effowd pressing séawards and ucontainwards. Paterfamilies is an agtiated figure these times. He arrives invariably one half-hour before the train, breathless and seper and in great tepidation. There is Madame, there are the children, there is the Boglish Wais who instruct the youthful mind; there is the Boglish brad "fox," and lastly, a large and varied assortment of luggage. The hat box, the hat box " Moanieur shrieks, dring wildly in the midst of his tangled forest of luggage. At last the moment of departure arrives. Monisser has threshered everybody, from the station-master to the angineer, with the prendities of a paternal Govennent if the train is a moment late, and in the certificarcarriage he has tried not only the comfort of query corpus, thut the resistances of the hat reads and the 'working of the sample. Mossieur are soughe. We are got tenness, our Mossieur are soughe. We are got tenness to revenue and the train is nating over the points to Trouville.

Although the disciples of the Messiah are exhorted to be harmises as dove, there is no reason why they should not also be wise as repeats, and, bearing this double recommendation in mind, the Abbé Revol, of the Church of St. Gratien, shaped his course accordingly. For along time the hard suspected that the poor box in the church would prove too strung a temptation to 1 beach suspected that the poor box in the church would prove too strung a temptation of 1 beach three who make the rifting of church almost box a speciality. Seriously the telephone service in Faris could hardly be worns. The fines are badly laid, the plant is instifficient and old-fashioned, and the staff is inadequate,
badly-trisoid, and inefficiently appervised.
This much must be said for the heads of departments and the higher-defining generally,
they are politicuses itself, as everyone finds out who goes to them with a grievance. The demand for telephonic communications has increased enormounly and rapidly, and the Government has made no effort to meet it, with the result that to-day there is a glit of brainess which stops the working of the entire sorrjice.

"More visitors than usual?" The old castodian in the Egyptian Gallery of the Mused to Loover took a large pinch of usualf, blew his nose in a red pooket handkenhise, and assiled. "It was no doubt it winter when you were here the last time?" It had been. I had paid a short visit to the aeroophages of one of the Pharacha in which, to show how well the Louve treasures were looked after, a Frouchman once spent the night; and I had the callers all to myself average for no first the gallery all to myself, except for my fr
